“ Our condolences to the family. We met Ralph while working at ACY1 Amazon. Ralph worked hard, joked, and best of all had all the stories. Always a pleasure to work with, he was absolutely one of a kind.

“ Really sad as news I should see him for the first time on Sunday morning because the other colleagues told me a lot about him especially about his punctuality to be at work. I was so impatient to share the 2 hours with him especially since he had previously worked at teb3 like me I was going to introduce myself to him with great enthusiasm but, God decided otherwise I waited for him until 6:30 a.m., 7:00 a.m. no Ralph and I started to worry I contacted my manager directly, but Don let me know that it is not his habit to miss work without keeping him informed. maybe it was a sign, the sad news really shocked me to the point that I was still reliving the whole morning scene waiting for him, so that's what life has in store for each of us. my sincere and sad condolences to the bereaved family

“ My condolences to Cara Mia and the entire Dadario family. I'll remember Ralph for his deep love of his family, most particularly Cara Mia, his sense of humor, his vast, never-ending knowledge of all things mechanical, his willingness to help anyone, anywhere anytime, his passion for life, his love, loyalty and caring for those that he took into his heart and his crazy side. A great loss to his family, to me and to the world. Rest in peace, Ralph, with the knowledge of a life lived to the max.

“ 2 weeks teamwork meant a lot. Your readiness to get things work will be missed. Your engagement was so smooth and amicable and your contribution within the short time to the team was immeasurable. I could still remember your last statement just last Wed, still rings; no one knew it was a Farewell greeting. Nevertheless, no one has power to retain life whenever it is time to go. On behalf of DGI3 team, farewell and thank you for that short moment, full of hilarity.

“ We are all so saddened that you entered into mortality. I hope you make a smooth transition to the Pearly White Gates. So many fond memories growing up around your parents home. I share a tear drop with your family during this sensitive time. You donned a style with a bit of fare during the Forum days. I'm glad we reconnected at Donna's party. Sadly, Danny Filoramo
