“ Thinking of you extra today- I realized I never wrote on here probably because it didn't and still doesn't really seem real. I remember when my grandpop passed away, I absolutely hated these few days when everything was over and everyone seemed to go back to their daily lives - it hurt my feelings and that's how I feel today. But I was thinking of some things you would always say and it made me feel better. I was picturing you screaming Deanna! Whatcha doing! Or me yelling at Michael or Tom and you laughing saying You go girl- slap me five! Watch over the baby - kiss her pictures 💕💕

“ Aunt Karen, your light extinguished too soon. The news of your sudden passing has left a gaping hole in our family, a silence where your warm laughter and generous spirit used to reside. It feels impossible that you're gone.

We will always remember your kindness and outgoing spirit. It wasn't just a surface-level nicety but a deep-seated empathy that made everyone feel seen and valued. You had a way of making even the smallest moments feel special.

Your generosity was legendary. Your kitchen was a haven of warmth and delicious aromas. Your incredible cooking and baking made every holiday brighter. Your Easter Breads were legendary, crafted with love, and shared with open arms.

But it was your love for children that truly set you apart. You had a magical connection with every child you met, always ready with a smile, a hug, or a playful joke. You made us, your nieces and nephews, feel like the most important people in the world. We will always remember stopping to see you before the Phillies and Eagles games and how kind and welcoming you always were to us, our children, and our friends. Those moments, those memories, are now precious treasures.

We never got to say goodbye properly or thank you enough for all the love and joy you brought into our lives. But your spirit, kindness, and love will live on in the memories we cherish.

Aunt Karen, you were a beacon of light, a source of unwavering love, and a true gift to our family. We will miss you more than words can say. Rest in peace, dear aunt. Your legacy of love will forever be etched in our hearts.
